COCKRAN TALKS IMPERIALISM.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.-General debate upon the Navai Appropriation bill was closed in the House to-day and the consideration of the bill by paragraphs for amendment was begun. Speeches were made by a number of members against further increase of the naval establishment, chief among them being Mesers. Perkins (Rep., N. Y.) and Cockran (Dem., N, Y.). Mr. Caines (Rep., W. Va.) replied to the statis-tical part of the speech delivered yesterday by Mr. Littlefield (Rep., Me.).

He asserted that the Treasury figures showed that not only would there be no deficit in the financial operations of the Government for next year, as Mr. Littlefield had asserted, but that on the contrary there would be a surplus. He agreed that the present tariff law was sufficient for necessary revenue and that as a "standpatter" he did not expect, for some years at least, a condition of things that would justify a change therein.

Six of the fifty-seven pages of the bill were passed before the committee rose-The Kansas oil fight will be made the subject of an investigation by the Committee on Commerce and Labor, by virtue of a resolution offered by Mr. Campbell (Rep., Kan.) and adopted. It is to go specifically into the cause of the wide difference between the cost of crude oil and the price of the refined article and whether or not an unlawful combination controls the

Mr. Cockran, in his speech on the Naval bill, declared that it seemed to him time for this nation to announce whether it would continue on the foundations laid by the fathers, or whether it would rest upon the principles of Napoleonic imperialism.

"This nation," he said, with great fervor, was so weak at its foundation that its bankruptcy was apprehended by its friends and foretold by its enemies. The history of it reads not like a record of human achievement, but rather a dispensation of God Himself."

of God Himself.

He said that the spirit breathed in Washington's farewell address rather than that shown in Napoleon's address to the Army of Italy, both delivered in 17-7, should guide the nation. But he maintained that the present course of the country was away from the Washingtonian to the Napoleonic idea.

He went on to tell how the nation in 1812 had, wholly unprepared, defied the greatest naval power in the world, when he was interrupted by Representative Talbott of Maryland, a Democratic colleague, who asked him when the ships used in that war were authorized. Mr. Cockran couldn't answer.

"I'll answer for you," said Mr. Talbott.
"Every ship was authorized before war was declared." Thereupon the House actually laughed at the Tammany orator.

More than once Mr. Cockran declared: "We are at the parting of the ways." He paid a warm tribute to the memory of the lete James C. Carter, whom he described not only as his instructor in the law, but his intimate personal friend. On the night of intimate personal friend. On the night of the election last fall, Cockran said, alr. Carter had spoken of the Democratic idea, which he said had been at work in the world for nineteen centuries.

"It was not to be found in any party nor in Jefferson's writings, nor in any bill of rights, nor Magna Charta, but in the admonition given by God to Adam in Eden. 'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread."

Every act of aggression by man or of conquest by nations, Mr. Cockran declared, was inspired by the desire to eat bread in the sweat of another man's face. Large standing armies, increasing navies and onstitutional restrictions so that the resident might have a free hand to work out his policy in the West Indies.

This ended the general debate and the

In the course of an animated colloquy between Messrs. Dayton (Rep., W. Va.) and Cockran (Dem., N. Y.), following a motion by Mr. Rixey (Dem., Va.), to strike out the provision for 3,000 increase of the naval force (making a total of 31,500 enlisted men), the question of arbitration treaties came up. Mr. Cockran closed it with the suggestion that the guns of battleships should not be turned upon foreign nations, but upon the United States Benate. The motion to strike out was lost-Senate. WOMEN AT SWAYNE TRIAL. Railroad Men Testify About the Accused Judge's Use of Passes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15 .- The Swayne impeachment trial was continued in the Senate this afternoon, the galleries being filled as usual with interested spectators. The number of women interested in the Swayne case is one of its peculiar features.

Everard Meade Wilson of Pensacola, a actor on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, testified that Judge Swayne had always ridden on a pass, except once, in the last eight years. Martin D. Merritt | male servants. of Pensacola, passenger conductor on the Louisville and Nashville, testified that Judge Swayne held an annual pass and never rode on a paid ticket with him in Henry Webb, another passenger conductor, testified to the same effect. Manager | De Armond took up the examination of E. T. Davis, a lawyer, who had been punished by Judge Swayne for contempt. The record of this case was read. Mr. Davis testified that he was not of counsel in the case in Judge Swayne's court when the ejectment case of Mctuire vs. Swayne was begun in the State court. This was offered to prove that Davis had not committed contempt in bringing the ejectment case.

The witness testified that Judge Swayne in passing sentence upon him and Simeon Belden used abusive language. "His man-ner was very abusive—almost fiendish," and the witness.

On cross-examination Mr. Davis admitted that he was counsel in the impeachment charges against Judge Swayne, but denied that he had appeared before the Florida Legislature to secure the passage of a judge swayne's of a joint resolution demanding Swayne's impeachment.

Don McLellan, a newspaper reporter of Pensacola, testified that he wrote an account of the Belden-Davis contempt case, and that Judge Swayne had read the article before it was printed in the News. LEGISLATURE NOT LIKELY TO GET UNDER WAY UNTIL MARCH.

Saxe's Bill to Head Off Tipping Starts a Lively Discussion-Bill to Permit Four Round Boxing Bouts Between Amateurs Has a Good show of Passing.

ALBANY, Feb. 15 .- Members of the Legislature have been disturbed lately because apparently nothing has been accomplished in the seven weeks in which the Legislature has been in session. It developed to-day, however, that the Republican leaders are entirely satisfied, and expect that the work of the session will be fully mapped out by March 1, and that everything can be complished easily in that month.

It had been expected that the Legislature would be able to adjourn on Friday, March 31, but to-day Senator Raines, the Republican leader in the upper branch, suggested that the session might last a week or two longer.

Senator Saxe's anti-tipping bill occasioned considerable discussion in the Senate to-day when it came up in com-mittee of the whole. Senator Grady wanted it a neaded so that he could tip pretty fe-of the American Society for the Present of Cruelty to Animals.

It was asserted that the new organiza-tion had chosen its name for the purpose of deceiving the public and creating the impression that it was a branch of the American society of which Mr. Bergh was the founder, thereby securing gifts intended

The bill was favored by Attorney John

Even the financial report is defective in Prof. Cleveland's opinion. Little or no information can be obtained as to relations of administrative economy.

Prof. Cleveland says that inasmuch as all the expenses of the board must be paid by warrant the records and reports of the board and the City Comptroller should agree.
